Elviras Bakery,

Appellant,

v.

Case Number: C0218362

Retailer Operations Division,

Respondent.

FINAL AGENCY DECISION

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) finds that there is sufficient evidence to support the determination by the Retailer Operations Division to withdraw the authorization of Elviras Bakery (“Appellant”) to participate as an authorized retailer in the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program.

ISSUE

The purpose of this review is to determine whether the Retailer Operations Division took appropriate action, consistent with Title 7 of the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) § 278.1(l)(1)(iii), in its administration of the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) when it withdrew Appellant’s authorization to participate as a retailer in SNAP in a letter dated May 8, 2019.

AUTHORITY

According to 7 U.S.C. § 2023 and its implementing regulations at 7 CFR § 279.1, “A food retailer or wholesale food concern aggrieved by administrative action under § 278.1, § 278.6 or § 278.7 . . . may . . . file a written request for review of the administrative action with FNS.”

CASE CHRONOLOGY

In a letter dated May 8, 2019, the Retailer Operations Division withdrew Appellant’s authorization to participate as a retailer in SNAP because the firm is not a retail food store as defined by the SNAP regulations. Specifically, the withdrawal letter states that firms that have more than 50 percent of their total gross sales in heated foods and/or prepared foods not intended for home preparation and/or consumption are not eligible to participate as retail food stores. The letter states the firm is primarily a restaurant based on information provided Appellant’s application and the contractor’s store visit report dated September 26, 2018. As the firm failed to meet the eligibility criteria for approval, Appellant was informed that the firm could not submit a new application to participate in SNAP for a period of six months which is consistent with Section 9 of the Food and Nutrition Act of 2008, as amended.

In a letter dated May 24, 2019, Appellant appealed the Retailer Operations Division decision and requested an administrative review of this action. The appeal was granted.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In an appeal of an adverse action, Appellant bears the burden of proving by a preponderance of evidence that the administrative action should be reversed. That means Appellant has the burden of providing relevant evidence that a reasonable mind, considering the record as a whole, would accept as sufficient to support a conclusion that the argument asserted is more likely to be true than untrue.

CONTROLLING LAW

The controlling law in this matter is contained in the Food and Nutrition Act of 2008, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 2018), and implemented through regulation under Title 7 CFR Part 278. In particular, 7 CFR § 278.1(l)(1) establishes the authority upon which the application of any firm to participate in SNAP may be denied if it meets the definition of an ineligible firm.

7 CFR § 278.1(k)(1) references 7 CFR § 278.1(b)(1)(iv) which reads, in part:

Firms that are considered to be restaurants, that is, firms that have more than 50 percent of their total gross retail sales in hot and/or cold prepared foods not intended for home preparation and consumption, shall not qualify for participation as retail food stores. . . . This includes firms that primarily sell prepared foods that are consumed on the premises or sold for carryout.

The definition of retail food store at 7 CFR § 271.2 states, in part:

Entities that have more than 50 percent of their total gross retail sales in hot and/or cold prepared, ready-to- eat foods that are intended for immediate consumption either for carry-out or on-premises consumption, and require no additional preparation, are not eligible for SNAP participation as retail food stores.

APPELLANT'S CONTENTIONS

Appellant's responses regarding this matter are essentially as follows:

- Appellant sells freshly baked breads and pastries. They are sold cool and do not require further heating.
- Disqualification would pose a financial hardship to Appellant.

These explanations may represent only a brief summary of Appellant's contentions. However, in reaching a decision, full consideration has been given to all contentions presented, including any others that have not been specifically listed here.

ANALYSIS AND FINDINGS

Appellant contends that the firm is not a restaurant, but a retail store. For the purpose of determining whether a firm is a restaurant, the issue is not whether the firm has available for sale SNAP-eligible food. The central issue is whether actual sales of prepared foods comprise more than 50 percent of the store's total gross retail sales. There is no doubt that staple food items may be delivered to the store fresh, raw and unprepared, and are available to customers that way. However, the store presents itself and is set up primarily as a bakery that primarily sells sweet accessory foods; thus, it is reasonable to expect that fresh food products do not outsell prepared and cooked food products at this establishment.

In regards to Appellant's contention that the store sells a great deal of fresh and unprepared food, the documentation presented does not support that the majority of the firm's business is in the sale of fresh foods for home preparation and consumption. There is no evidence in the inspection report and photographs of the March 6, 2013 store visit, nor in the information provided by Appellant, that indicates that Appellant is anything other than primarily a bakery selling primarily sweet accessory foods baked at Appellant.

Appellant contends that it sells freshly baked breads and pastries. They are sold cool and do not require further heating. Prepared foods include sweet baked goods baked at Appellant. That they do not require further heating is irrelevant to the determination of whether Appellant's establishment is a restaurant. The store visit documentation showed Appellant offered few unsweetened goods baked at Appellant other than some buns and rolls. The layout of the store has tables and chairs for dining on the premises, typical of a restaurant.

Hardship to Appellant

Appellant asserts that withdrawal of authorization would put the business in financial jeopardy. Economic hardship is a likely consequence whenever a store's SNAP authorization is withdrawn. However, there is no provision in the SNAP regulations for reducing an administrative penalty on the basis of possible economic hardship to the firm resulting from such a penalty. To excuse Appellant from an assessed administrative penalty based on purported economic hardship to the firm would render the enforcement provisions of the Food and Nutrition Act of 2008 and the enforcement efforts of the USDA virtually meaningless.

Moreover, giving special consideration to economic hardship of the firm would forsake fairness and equity, not only to competing stores and other participating retailers who are complying fully with program regulations, but also to those retailers who have been withdrawn from the program in the past for similar deficiencies. Therefore, Appellant's contention that it will incur economic hardship based on deficiencies in meeting the eligibility requirements does not provide any valid basis for dismissing the withdrawal of Appellant's authorization.

Summary

The authorization of a store to participate in SNAP must be in accord with the Food and Nutrition Act and regulations, as amended. Those requirements of law cannot be waived. This review is limited to consideration of the circumstances at the time of the denial action by the Retailer Operations Division. On the day of the store visit, the evidence supported that the store is primarily a restaurant, and firms that are primarily restaurants are not eligible to participate in SNAP.

The store is set up primarily to sell hot and/or cold prepared, ready-to-eat foods that are intended for immediate consumption or for carry-out, and require no additional preparation. Although food items in Appellant's store may be available for sale fresh, it is more likely true than not true that the majority of foods in the store are actually sold prepared and/or hot and ready-to-eat. According to 7 CFR § 278.1(b)(1) of the SNAP regulations, such a store is considered a restaurant and is not eligible for SNAP participation as a retail food store. Therefore, Appellant's store does not qualify as a retail food store for purposes of SNAP participation.

CONCLUSION

Based on the discussion above, the determination by the Retailer Operations Division to withdrawal of authorization of Elviras Bakery to participate as an authorized SNAP retailer is sustained. In accordance with the Food and Nutrition Act of 2008, as amended, and its associated regulations, this withdrawal action shall become effective 30 days after delivery of this letter.
